Biographical / Historical

Edwin C. Bearss (b. June 26, 1923) is a world renowned military historian specializing in Civil War and World War II history. He had a long and distinguished career with the National Park Service, including discovery of the long lost Union gunboat U.S.S. Cairo as well as locating two forts in Grand Gulf, Mississippi.

Over the course of his career Bearss conducted many detailed area studies for the National Park Service. Several of his most notable studies include, but are certainly not limited to: Vicksburg, Eisenhower Farm at Gettysburg, Fort Hancock at the Boston Navy Yard, Lyndon B. Johnson Ranch, William Howard Taft House, and Big Horn Canyon.

Bearss served as Chief Historian for the National Park Service from 1981-1994.

Scope and Contents

Edwin C. Bearss History of the Pocantico Hills estate was created for the National Park Service, and ultimately served to begin building the case for Kykuit's designation as a National Historic Site. The study is primarily focused on the business and philanthropic activities of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and his impact on Pocantico and the surrounding area.

The collection is comprised of a draft version of Bearss study, with minor corrections or additions and comments noted among the pages.
