At its September 1961 meeting, the Ford Foundation's Board of Trustees "RESOLVED that the Chairman appoint a committee of Trustees and officers to review the programs of the Foundation and report to the Board on program areas which might be newly entered into and programs, if any, which might be discontinued."

Those appointed to serve on the Special Committee were: John J. McCloy, Chairman of the Board of Trustees (and Chair of the Committee); Donald K. David, Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees; and Henry T. Heald, President of the Foundation. Other members of the Committee were John Cowles, McNeil Lowry, Julius A. Stratton, Bethuel M. Webster, Milton Katz, Dyke Brown, Clarence H. Faust, F. F. Hill, William McPeak, James M. Nicely, Joseph M. McDaniel, and Joseph E. Slater.

The Committee assembled staff appraisals of previous Ford Foundation programs and conducted extensive surveys both inside and outside the Foundation to determine courses of action for the future. The Committee meetings were held between March and April 1962. Each session focused on goals for different program areas (Education, Economics, International Relations, Science and Technology, and the Arts).

The names 'Special Committee on Program Review' and 'Survey Committee' were used interchangeably.
