Biographical / Historical

In the fall of 1959 The Rockefeller University (formerly The Rockefeller Institute) under the inspiration and direction of Dr. Theodore Shedlovsky instituted a series of subscription concerts on Wednesday evenings and occasionally on Sunday afternoons. These became an established University event, well attended by faculty and students and frequently preceded by a buffet dinner in the Abby Aldrich Hall dining room. On Dr. Shedlovsky's death, along with his papers, the tapes of the concerts were given to the University archives.

Physical Characteristics and Technical Requirements

Contents of the collection are primarily audio tapes and reels.

Almost all the concerts were taped on 7 inch reels. In some instances duplicate tapes have already been made. Originals and duplicates are boxed together chronologically. In most instances there is a copy of the concert program in the tape box. Another set of programs is shelved with the tape collection.
