Biographical / Historical

The Ford Foundation was chartered by Henry and Edsel Ford in 1936 "to receive and administer funds for scientific, educational and charitable purposes, all for the public welfare", and initially served the Ford family's charitable interests in the Detroit area. Following the deaths of Edsel Ford (1943) and Henry Ford (1947), the Foundation was propelled to the forefront of philanthropy as the largest American foundation in terms of both endowment and yearly expenditures, and with an international scope to its major program areas. During the Foundation's first twenty years its major programs were in international economic development, primary and higher education, educational and public broadcasting, behavioral sciences, civil liberties, urban development, fine arts and the humanities. The Ford Foundation also partnered with the Rockefeller Foundation in supporting agricultural development in South America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. Since the 1970s, the Foundation has also pioneered programs in women's rights, energy policy, micro-financing in under-developed countries, establishing human rights groups, and improving international HIV/AIDS education.

Biographical / Historical

Robert V. Williams (1938-2017) was an archivist, information services professional, and educator. He worked in various records management and archives positions in the Ford Foundation's Logistical Services unit.

Williams received an undergraduate degree in Social Sciences and Education from Harding University in 1961, a Master's Degree in Library Science from Florida State University in 1964, and a PhD in Information Studies from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1978. Prior to joining the Ford Foundation, he worked at the Georgia Department of Archives and History from between 1965 and 1969. He became a professor at the University of South Carolina in 1978 and served as Director of the Office of Research for the College of Mass Communications and Information Studies between 2002 and 2004.

Scope and Contents

Collection contains the office files of Robert Williams who occupied different records management related positions in the Ford Foundation's Logistical Services unit between 1969 and 1974. Logistical Services operated within the Foundation's Division of Administration, and Williams was hired as a Records Analyst before becoming Records Services Manager. The collection consists of one series of subject files. Williams' staff subject files include a lot of material that originated from before he joined the Foundation and some material that appears to have been created by Robert Mayer who was Officer-in-Charge of Logistical Services. This material may have been collected by Williams or may have been mixed in with his subject files at some point by the Foundation's archives.

The collection documents the development of the Ford Foundation's records management and archives policies and procedures. It contains correspondence, memos, drafts, reports, and notes that discuss topics like the Foundation's grants index, catalogued reports, information retrieval policies, filing procedures impacting the Foundation's field offices, records security, space allocation for records in the Ford Foundation New York City Headquarters building, microfilming, and data processing. In addition to documenting the activities of Williams and Mayer, the collection also contains a significant amount of memos and other records created by Margaret Sloane who was the Information Services Manager.

Scope and Contents

Series contains the subject files of Robert Williams. The files document the Ford Foundation's evolving records management policies and procedures from the 1950s to the 1970s. They include correspondence, memos, reports, drafts, and notes that regard the Logistical Services unit's involvement in activities like the Foundation's grant index, catalogued reports, information retrieval policies and storage and handling equipment, filing procedures impacting the Foundation's field offices, records security, space allocation for records in the Ford Foundation New York City Headquarters building, vendors' bids for microfilming services, and data processing. The records show the Foundation's efforts to understand and address records management issues and the Logistical Services staff's efforts to learn, devise, and structure records management policies, procedures, and systems. In addition to documenting the activities of Williams, the series strongly highlights the work of Logistical Services Officer-in-Charge Robert Mayer and Information Services Manager Margaret Sloane.

It is unclear if all of the files in the series were created and organized by Robert Williams or if some were mixed in with his subject files at a later point in time. Some may be closely associated with the staff subject files of Robert

Mayer. A note from 1980 was discovered at the front of the series that is most likely not related to the work of Williams.
