Biographical Note

Roger G. Kennedy was born in St. Paul, Minnesota in 1926. He received a B.A. from Yale University in 1949 and a law degree from the University of Minnesota. During the 1950s, he served as Special Assistant to the U.S. Attorney General; the U.S. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; and the U.S. Secretary of Labor. He began a career in banking during the 1960s, serving as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Northwestern Bank of St. Paul, Minnesota and as Vice President of Investments at the University of Minnesota.

Mr. Kennedy joined the Ford Foundation in 1970 as Vice President of the Office of Finance. Charged with steering the Foundation towards achieving long-term sustainability despite the high inflation of the 1970s, he restructured expenditures and the investment portfolio. He also served as a key advisor on financial matters to President McGeorge Bundy and to the Board of Trustees' Finance Committee, and frequently prepared dockets and presented reports and recommendations to the Committee. The Finance Committee, initiated by the Board of Trustees in 1953, set investment policy and monitored the performance of the Foundation's portfolio. Finance Committee members during Mr. Kennedy's tenure included Stephen D. Bechtel, McGeorge Bundy, William H. Donaldson, John H. Loudon, J. Irwin Miller, Julius A. Stratton, and Bethuel M. Webster.

In 1978, Mr. Kennedy became Vice President of the newly created Office of the Arts (formerly Office of Humanities and the Arts). While in office, he drafted several reports assessing the field of grant-making in the arts and identified opportunities and possible focuses for grant-making. He also was involved with the Forty-Second Street Development Corporation and its efforts to revitalize the small theatre district of West 42nd Street.

Mr. Kennedy departed the Foundation in 1979 to become Director of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History. From 1993 to 1997, he served as Director of the National Parks Service. He has also taught at Harvard, Yale and Stanford University.

Organizational History

The Ford Foundation's Office of Finance, established in 1970, continued and expanded upon the functions of the Office of the Treasurer (1966-1970), the Office of the Treasury (1958-1966), and the Treasurer (prior to 1958). Its creation and mandate were shaped by the need for the Foundation to respond to two major financial developments. The first was passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1969, which increased federal scrutiny of the expenditure of all charities. The second was the threat that high rates of inflation and an unstable economy posed to the Foundation's assets and grant-making. The Office of Finance initiated stricter and more formalized procedures to guide the Foundation through this period of immense financial and economic change and uncertainty.

The Foundation's Board of Trustees' Finance Committee amended the By-Laws in 1970. The new amendments gave the Vice President of Finance and the Treasurer, acting jointly, sole power to buy and sell the Foundation's stock, bonds, and real estate assets. The Office of Finance retained an internal investment research staff to assist with the reshaping and diversification of the Foundation's investment portfolio.

The Office of the Arts originated as the Office of Humanities and the Arts, created in 1957 under the direction of its first Vice President, W. McNeil Lowry. In 1979, the Office of the Arts was restructured as a program area under Education and Public Policy and, after another reorganization in 1997, it became part of Education, Media, Arts and Culture. Education, Media, Arts and Culture was reorganized as the Knowledge, Creativity and Freedom Program in 2002.

Scope and Content Note

The Office Files of Roger G. Kennedy span from 1969 to 1979 and consist of memoranda, reports, articles, speeches, background and meeting materials documenting his work as Vice President of the Office of Finance (1969-1977) and the Office of the Arts (1978-1979).

The bulk of the collection consists of Finance Committee dockets. These dockets contain agenda books (later called "Treasurer's Reports") with portfolio reviews and summaries of investment holdings. The files also hold meeting minutes, reports and background memoranda, and proposed By-Laws amendments. Mr. Kennedy was responsible for preparing and distributing briefing materials about investment activities to Committee members for review in advance of meetings. The Tax Reform Act of 1969 also led the Foundation to amend its By-Laws to expand the powers and duties of the Vice President of Financial Affairs and the Treasurer and enable them to manage the Foundation's assets independently from the Board.

There are also memoranda discussing proposed new agreements between the Ford Motor Company and the Foundation regarding the sale and conversion of Ford Motor Company non-voting Class A stock. Other memoranda discuss the terms for continued use of external advisors to manage portions of the Foundation's investments.

Also part of Mr. Kennedy's Committee records are memoranda and correspondence pertaining to the Foundation's efforts to divest and diversify its portfolio of Ford Motor Company stock. There also is correspondence between Mr. Kennedy and then-President McGeorge Bundy regarding the Foundation's financial affairs.

Other files contain research memoranda and recommendations by investment research staff within the Office of the Treasurer.
