Biographical / Historical

Jon Funabiki joined the Ford Foundation in 1995. He served as Deputy Director of the Media, Arts, and Culture Unit within the Knowledge, Creativity and Freedom Program. While at the Ford Foundation, he prioritized promoting ethics, credibility and diversity in journalism, strengthening media criticism, and promoting freedom of expression.

Jon Funabiki is a graduate of San Francisco State University. Prior to joining the Foundation, he was founding director of San Francisco State University's Center for Integration and Improvement of Journalism. He also directed News Watch: A critical look at coverage of people of color and Project Zinger, an annual analysis of coverage of Asian Pacific Americans, sponsored by the Asian American Journalists Association. Funabiki is a former reporter and editor with The San Diego Union, where he specialized in US-Asia political and economic affairs.

Funabiki currently serves as a professor of journalism at San Francisco State University.
