Biographical/Historical note

The Fund for the Advancement of Education (TFAE) was established in 1951 to support new and experimental programs at all levels of formal education. The five areas to which TFAE focused its resources were: the equalization of educational opportunity; improvements in curricula; clarification of the functions of educational institutions; improvement of educational management and financing; and the improvement of teaching. TFAE operated for over a decade. It ceased funding new projects in the late 1960s.
