Biographical / Historical

At its September 1961 meeting, the Board of Trustees of the Foundation "RESOLVED that the Chairman appoint a committee of Trustees and officers to review the programs of the Foundation and report to the Board on program areas which might be newly entered into and programs, if any, which might be discontinued." At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board in October, "The Chairman reported on the composition of the Committee on Objectives of the Foundation...." Joseph Slater, who had rejoined the Foundation staff at the behest of John J. McCloy to serve as the Study Director of the Committee, acted as rapporteur at the first meeting of the Committee which was held on October 26 after the Board's Executive Committee adjourned.

The Committee undertook to review the Foundation's "policies, programs, and operations...and to recommend policies, programs, and operations for the 1960s...." Those appointed to serve on the Special Committee were: John J. McCloy, Chairman of the Board of Trustees (and Chair of the Committee); Donald K. David, Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees; and Henry T. Heald, President of the Foundation. Other members of the Committee were John Cowles, Julius A. Stratton, Bethuel M.

Webster, Milton Katz, Dyke Brown, Clarence H. Faust, F. F. Hill, William McPeak, James M. Nicely, Joseph M. McDaniel, and Joseph E. Slater.

The Committee was ostensibly formed as a ten year review committee, but was also implicitly intended to address proper relationships between Board, President and staff. The Committee assembled staff appraisals of the programs of the Foundation in the previous decade and conducted extensive surveys both inside and outside the Foundation to determine courses of action for the future.

The efforts of the Special Committee were broken down into three general phases. Phase one took place from October 1961 to January 1962, during which period the Foundation's past and present programs were appraised. The results are represented in Volume I of 'Supporting Materials,' and are "based primarily upon evaluations by the Foundation staff covering the period 1951-1961."

Also during this phase, "Program Directors and Officers were asked to submit proposals for programs in the 1960s both for their own programs and for the Foundation as a whole. These, together with proposals and suggestions [made] by the Trustees, are in Volume II of 'Supporting Materials.'"

During the second phase (January through April 1962) of the Committee's activities, "wide-ranging interviews with specialists and distinguished leaders were conducted by the Chairman, the Trustee members, and the Study Director... The results are reported in Volume III of 'Supporting Materials.'" Special submissions and papers are summarized in Volume IV.

"On the basis of this supporting material and extensive informal interviews within the Foundation, the Committee held broad discussions during March and April 1962, regarding future programs and policies." The principal problems facing the United States and the world at that time were examined, and the Committee undertook to identify areas in which the Foundation could hope to move with greatest effect during the ensuing decade. Exploration of new areas of interest was not limited to those in the which the Foundation had conducted programs up to that point. "Trustees not members of the Special Committee, and Program Directors, participated actively in these discussions."

During the third and final phase of its project, "the Special Committee considered the institutional, organizational, and financial implications of the new and revised programs and policies it had formulated."

The set of Directives and Terms of Reference resulting from this entire effort were discussed, amended and then approved by the Board of Trustees at its quarterly meeting in June 1962.

("Directives and Terms of Reference for the 1960s," Introduction, pp. i-ii)

(The Archives has multiple copies of the "Directives..." and the four volumes of supporting materials. In addition, copies of the proceedings and the reports in the "Directives..." were placed in the Archives' collection of unpublished staff and consultant reports and cataloged as individual items following the processing of this collection in 1987. See Appendix A for a list of report numbers. In 1995, the "Directives..." and supporting materials were cataloged as report #012673.)

The Foundation also published "The Ford Foundation in the 1960s: Statement of the Board of Trustees on Policies, Programs, and Operations" in July 1962. This volume was intended for distribution outside the Foundation to explain the outcome of the review undertaken by the Special Committee.

For further information on the origins and workings of the Study Committee, see the oral histories of John J. McCloy, Joseph Slater, Willard J. Hertz and W. McNeil Lowry. A review of the Board's consideration of the Directives can be found in the minutes for the June 1962 Board of Trustees meeting.

Scope and Contents

The records of the Special Committee, 1952-1963, the bulk of which were produced from November 1961 to June 1962, were originally part of Joseph E. Slater's office files. Slater served as the Study Director of the Committee. The Committee is frequently called either "The Slater Committee" after its director, or "The McCloy Review Committee" after John J. McCloy who was the Chairman of the Foundation's Board of Trustees when the Committee was established and served as its Chair. Because these documents were created and/or assembled by the Committee during the course of its review of Foundation policies, programs and operations, the decision was made to remove them from Slater's office files and process them as a separate collection.

In July 1995, the register for these records was substantially revised and the records themselves reviewed. The following material concerning the Special Committee was found in the Records Center and added to the records:

- Files originally from the offices of William McPeak and Terrance Keenan. These now comprise Series III.
- A notebook belonging to Slater with spine label "Special Committee Memoranda" contained some memoranda written by him that were not included in the records. These were interfiled in folder 50 which contains Slater's outgoing correspondence.

Arrangement

The records of the Special Committee are organized in three series:

- I. Working Papers of the Special Committee, 1952-1963
- II. Proceedings and Report of the Special Committee, 1962

III. Files on the Special Committee Maintained by William McPeak and Terrance Keenan, 1961-1963

Collection Inventory

Working Papers of the Special Committee, 1952-1963, 1952-1963

Scope and Contents

Series I contains supporting material ("source files," charts, reports, summaries of interviews and other material assembled for decision making and use at meetings) and correspondence (letters and memoranda to and from Committee members, agendas, minutes and meeting summaries).

"Source files" (folders 9-19) contain material kept on potential program areas. They contain interview excerpts, staff submissions prepared as memoranda, miscellaneous notes and letters, and relevant journal and newspaper articles. Included in the first "source file" (box 1, folder 9) is a list of headings used to classify the material in the "source files" which are arranged according to this classification scheme.

Entries are classified under two broad areas of interest: "Advancement of Peace and International Order and "Invigoration of American Society." Headings under "Advancement of Peace and International Order are coded "A" (for "U.S. Foreign Policy") to "P" (for "Trade with Less-Developed Countries"). Headings under "Invigoration of American Society" are coded "1" (for "U.S. Art and Culture") to "22" (for "Ford Foundation as an Institution").

Interviews with experts and leaders in a wide variety of fields were conducted by the Chairman, Trustee members, and the Study Director between January and April 1962 (folders 20 to 30). A list categorizing the interviewees and noting the numbers assigned to them is provided in folder 20. The categories are: I. World Affairs; II. Business; III. Labor; IV. Governmental and Congressional; V. Mass Media; VI. Educational and Scientific; and VII. Religious and Cultural.

The memoranda summarizing these conversations are arranged in numerical order under the name of the Committee member who conducted the interview and are included as supporting material. Notable interviewees include Eleanor Roosevelt (Slater #3), Leonard Bernstein (Slater #55), Adlai Stevenson (Slater #57), Herbert Hoover (McCloy #1),

Margaret Mead (Slater #91), and Dean Rusk (Slater #A). Rather than transcribing each interview verbatim, the interviews were summarized in memorandum form by the Committee member responsible.

In the Correspondence section of Series I (folders 36 to 49), incoming letters deal primarily with suggestions for the focus of the Foundation's activities in the 1960s from leaders and experts in various fields, former and current staff members, and Committee members Milton Katz and Bethuel M. Webster. Originally maintained by the Committee in alphabetical order under the name of the outside correspondent, these files have been reorganized under the names of the Committee members (Henry T. Heald, John J. McCloy, Joseph E. Slater) who received the letters. Alphabetical file order by outside correspondent's name has been maintained within the recipients' files. In addition, each of the above-named Committee members, as well as Milton Katz and Bethuel M. Webster, have outgoing letter files arranged in reverse chronological order.

Many of the letters and memoranda have numbers in the upper righthand corners. These are crossreferences to the interview numbers assigned to each interviewee by members of the Committee. The files include letters from such notable personalities as former U.S. Presidents Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover; Congressman Barry Goldwater; and William Benton, publisher and chairman of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Other correspondents include former Foundation staffer Waldemar A. Nielsen and trustee Charles E. Wyzanski. Almost half of the letters to John J. McCloy are in German; most include English translations.

Arrangement

Series I is arranged in two subseries:

A. Supporting Materials, 1952-1962

B. Correspondence, (1956-1957, 1959) 1961-1963

Proceedings and Report of the Special Committee, 1962

Scope and Contents

Series II contains a carbon copy of the transcript of the Proceedings, sessions I through XII of the Special Committee meetings of March and April 1962 (boxes 5 and 6, folders 63 and 64). (The Archives has an additional copy of the transcript in the Vital Records Room, Level C.) The proceedings recount verbatim the discussions between Committee members during these meetings. Also included in this series is a copy of the "Directives and Terms of Reference for the 1960s," the end product of the Committee's efforts, and a draft of the "Directives..." with handwritten revisions and comments by McCloy and Heald (folder 65) along with the four volumes of supporting material. See Appendix B for a guide to the "Directives..." and the supporting material.

The Foundation's policies and program interests during the 1950s are summarized in Volume I of the Supporting Materials: Ford Foundation Program Evaluation, 1951-61. Volume II is a collection of Trustee and Staff proposals recommending programming directions to be considered in the 1960s. Interview results that include contributions from outside leaders and experts are reported in Volume III. Volume IV contains special papers written by Foundation staff and the principal working papers prepared by Slater. Folders 67 through 72 contain the four volumes of Supporting Materials.

The "Directives..." present five broad categories, reflecting the recommendations of staff and Trustees, as the principal areas of Foundation concern: Educational Affairs, Arts and Sciences, Public and Economic Affairs, International Affairs, and Overseas Development.
