Biographical / Historical

The Ford Foundation's office in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia operated from between 1962 and 1976. It was responsible for overseeing grants for the countries of Malaysia and Singapore. These grants primarily focused on agricultural and industrial development, higher education and research, management and administration, and population and family planning.

The Ford Foundation established its Kuala Lumpur office in 1962 as part of its efforts to expand its overseas development program in Southeast Asia. The Malay peninsula was considered vital to the long term political and economic development of the region. Before the Malaysia office was opened, the Foundation's Asia program consisted of four country programs in India, Pakistan, Indonesia, and Burma (Myanmar). The Kuala Lumpur Office opened shortly before the Foundation closed its Rangoon, Burma office. Burma Representative Walter A. Rudlin relocated to Malaysia.

In 1968, the Foundation's Malaysia and Singapore programs became absorbed under the Ford Foundation Southeast Asia Regional Office in Bangkok, Thailand. The Kuala Lumpur office later closed in 1976. Several significant events in the history of Malaysia occurred during the time the Foundation had its office there such as the formation of Malaysia from the union of Malaya, North Borneo, Sarawak, and Singapore in 1963, Singapore leaving Malaysia in 1965, and the May 1969 race riots in Kuala Lumpur.
