Biographical / Historical

Stacy May was an economist who helped plan U. S. war production during World War II and who worked as an economic consultant to the Rockefeller family for several decades. He was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on April 18, 1896 and attended Amherst College in Massachusetts. Between 1917 and 1919, he served with Motor Ambulance Co. 61 of the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I. After the war, May continued his studies and received his Ph.D. in economics jointly from Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government (now Brookings Institute), and Washington University. Between 1921 and 1932, May taught economics at Amherst College, Cornell University, and Dartmouth College.

In 1932, he became Assistant Director of Social Sciences at Rockefeller Foundation, where he worked until 1942. Between 1940 and 1944, May was Director of the Bureau of Research and Statistics of the War Production Board and its predecessor agencies. In 1941, he went to Britain as special representative of Henry L. Stimson, U. S. Secretary of War, in an effort to combine and coordinate British and American war production programs.

Following World War II and a brief time as Assistant to the President of McGraw-Hill Publishing Company (1944-1946), May resumed his long association with the Rockefellers in 1947. He worked as an economic advisor to Room 5600 (the Rockefeller Family office), with IBEC – the International Basic Economy Corporation – and as an economic advisor to Nelson Rockefeller during his time as Governor of New York State and during his campaign for the U. S. presidency.

May also served as economic analyst for several government advisory committees and commissions, as well as serving for many years as a Member of the National Planning Association which had been founded in 1934 as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization devoted to planning by Americans in agriculture, business, labor, and the professions.

Stacy May retired as an economic consultant to the Rockefellers in 1965. He died on November 24, 1980, at 84 years of age.

Collection Inventory

Subgroup 1, 1919-1972

Physical Description: 34.94 Cubic Feet 74 legal-sized document boxes, 1 oversized box

Scope and Contents

Subgroup 1 contains Stacy May's files from 1919-1972 and includes personal correspondence, letters, reports, speeches, newspaper clippings, articles, and publications. The material was originally organized into several alphabetical runs, and this order has been maintained, leading to some duplication of subject matter. Along with material from May's time with the War Production Board and with Nelson Rockefeller, Subgroup 1 also contains several folders relating to Cape Cod, Massachusetts, indicative of Stacy May's interest in this area where he spent his retirement years.

Processing Information:

Processing Information

The material in Subgroup 1 has been rehoused into legal-sized document boxes, but the material remains, for the most part, in its original folders. Original order has been primarily maintained.

Biographical / Historical

Although the acronym "DNA" may have stood for Definitive News Analysis, no corroboration has been found in the written record. The staff of DNA were on Rockefeller's personal payroll. There were two main divisions to DNA, a research group for Nelson A. Rockefeller. The Domestic Policy staff was overseen by Roswell B. Perkins, while the Foreign Policy staff was led by Henry Kissinger. In later years, DNA was headed by Oscar M. Ruebhausen. The main function of the organization was to draft position papers and research reports on issues important to Rockefeller's pursuit of the Republican presidential nomination.
