Biographical/Historical note

The Center for the Prevention of Premature Arteriosclerosis (CPPA) was established in 1971 by The Rockefeller University, Albert Einstein College of Medicine, College of Physicians and Surgeons, primarily, but also Cornell University Medical College and New York University Medical School.

The program at the Central Clinic at The Rockefeller University is one of the 15 SCOR (Specialized Centers of Research) programs in arteriosclerosis that are supported throughout the country by the National Heart and Lung Institute of the National Institutes of Health.

The program is guided by an Executive Committee consisting of the Principal Investigator, Edward H. Ahrens; the Medical Director, Robert Palmer; Howard A. Eder of Albert Einstein and DeWitt S. Goodman of Columbia University.
