Biographical / Historical

The Ford Foundation was chartered by Henry and Edsel Ford in 1936 "to receive and administer funds for scientific, educational and charitable purposes, all for the public welfare", and initially served the Ford family's charitable interests in the Detroit area. Following the deaths of Edsel Ford (1943) and Henry Ford (1947), the Foundation was propelled to the forefront of philanthropy as the largest American foundation in terms of both endowment and yearly expenditures, and with an international scope to its major program areas. During the Foundation's first twenty years its major programs were in international economic development, primary and higher education, educational and public broadcasting, behavioral sciences, civil liberties, urban development, fine arts and the humanities. The Ford Foundation also partnered with the Rockefeller Foundation in supporting agricultural development in South America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. Since the 1970s, the Foundation has also pioneered programs in women's rights, energy policy, micro-financing in under-developed countries, establishing human rights groups, and improving international HIV/AIDS education.

Scope and Contents

Series contains the subject files that Nancy Boggs created during her time as an Administrative Officer and Graphics Manager in the Ford Foundation's Office of Reports. The bulk of the records regard Boggs' work supporting the planning, production, promotion, and distribution of the Foundation's various sponsored films. Boggs' work on the Institute of Child Health (ICH) film "That Our Children Will Not Die" is particularly well documented in the series, but there are also records concerning films like "Changing Work", "They Call It Wildcat", and "Tomorrow We'll See What Happens" among others. These films chiefly regard topics like primary health care, education, and jobs and job programs. Correspondence, memos, notes, Recommended Grant Actions records (RGAs), contracts and agreements, invoices, and expense reports document how Boggs worked with consultant producers, directors, and film crews and co-sponsor institutions like the ICH in the planning and production of the different films. Similar materials as well as newspaper clippings, drafts, photographs, and inventories document how Boggs assisted the promotion and dissemination of the films.

The remaining files in the series regard the Office of Reports' promotion of other Ford Foundation activities and the use of television and film media in that kind of promotion.

The film negative and several of the stills in the file are from the Ford Foundation sponsored film "Changing Work". These images are interspersed with a group of stills from the "Household Technicians" episode of the "Are You Listening" series along with correspondence from Martha Stuart Communications to Nancy Boggs. It is unclear why these two groups of unrelated images were mixed together. The file also contains a set of stills related to the Institute of Child Health (ICH), University of Lagos film "That Our Children Will Not Die". A document describing these photographs is included. Photograph 6 in the set appears to be missing from the file.
