Biographical/Historical note

The Rockefeller Foundation was established by act of the New York State Legislature approved by the Governor on May 14, 1913, "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world." Between 1913 and 1928 the China Medical Board, the International Health Board, and the Division of Medical Education functioned as divisions of the Foundation, concentrating on the administration of programs in public health and medical education. A Division of Studies was created in 1923 to handle projects outside the medical field. These early years were experimental as the new foundation studied the methods of philanthropy and explored its relationships with other Rockefeller boards.

Although the Rockefeller Foundation is the largest and best known philanthropy founded by the Rockefeller family, it was neither the first nor the last to be established. The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research (1901), the General Education Board (1902), the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission for the Eradication of Hookworm Disease (1909), and the Bureau of Social Hygiene (1911) all existed earlier. When the Foundation was created, the Sanitary Commission was disbanded. After the establishment of the Foundation, the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial (1918) and the International Education Board (1923) were created.

The Rockefeller boards and their programs were reconsidered and reorganized in 1927-1928 in order to avoid overlapping programs. The International Health Board of the Foundation was disbanded and an International Health Division was organized. The China Medical Board, Inc., was established as a separately incorporated institution, and the China Medical Board of the Foundation ceased to exist. The Division of Studies was dropped and the Division of Medical Education was phased out. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial was combined with the Foundation and the Spelman Fund of New York was chartered to continue activities of the LSRM that were not absorbed by the Foundation. The International Education Board was disbanded.

As a result of this reorganization, the Foundation adopted a program which included public health work (administered by the IHD), the advancement of knowledge in the medical and natural sciences (in part taken over from the IEB), the social sciences (formerly the field of the LSRM), and the humanities and arts (shared with the GEB). The Rockefeller Institute and the Bureau of Social Hygiene were not affected by the reorganization. The program adopted by the Foundation at this time remained basically the same for the next twenty years.

As its files accumulated, the Foundation maintained a card index recording the names of institutional and individual grantees and correspondents. A microfilm copy of this index is available at the Archive Center.

Arrangement note

The project files are arranged in series according to country. Each state within the United States and every country or geographical area was assigned a three-digit number by RF staff. In addition, letters signifying program areas are used: for example, "A" indicates a grant in the Medical Sciences, and "C" Nursing. Material is organized within these letter/program subdivisions alphabetically by grant title. A grant title usually consists of a heading that includes the name of the institution or individual that received the grant. Thus each grant, or project, is filed individually in one or more folders.

Collection Inventory

International, 1913-1958

Physical Description: 38 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 108 __Boxes __38 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

Arrangement note

The 100 series is divided into 18 subseries as follows:

100 (No program letter, general material which does not fit into a particular program area)

100 A Medical sciences (research conducted in medical schools or medical schools or medical research institutes, research directly applicable to the mental and physical health of human beings)

100 C Nursing (nursing education, public health nursing)

100 D Natural sciences and agriculture

100 EL Public health fellowships, scholarships, training awards

100 ER Humanities fellowships

100 F Declinations (only declinations of exceptional interest are retained)

100 H Hookworm

100 I Malaria

100 K Health services

100 L Public health education (schools of hygiene and public health)

100 M Respiratory diseases

100 N War relief

100 O Yellow fever

100 R Humanities and arts

100 S Social sciences

100 T Tuberculosis

100 U Yaws

International - Medical Science

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

International - Health Services

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

flour sack:

flour sack

For preservation reasons, an embroidered flour sack was removed from an unknown location within this collection, and rehoused. It was a real cotton flour sack, with drawings and embroidery to commemorate the RF's war relief work in Belgium. It has been relocated in the flat files in Vault 107, see Oversize Inventory for specifics.

International - Yellow Fever

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

International - Tuberculosis

Scope and Contents note

Material, mostly 1913-1942, relating to projects originated by international organizations or involving more than one country. Included in this designation are organizations directly connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, such as the International Health Division (which was a part of the Foundation governed separately until 1951); organizations indirectly related to the Foundation, such as the Spelman Fund of New York and the China Medical Board, Inc.; and other, independent organizations which received support from the Foundation. Much of the material concerns the work of the International Health Division. There is a large section on the war relief of the Foundation (1914-1918). Additional items of interest are a progress report on nursing education (1928), an anthropological survey (1932-1933), and the files on international studies and international relations.

Related Archival Materials note

For information concerning specific countries consult the appropriate country series. Correspondence and reports relating to international affairs can also be found in the Foundation's General Correspondence files, Record Group 2. Record Group 5, International Health Board/Division, contains correspondence and reports prior to 1928, and reports from 1928 to 1958. International Health Division material can also be found in Record Group 3, Administration, Program and Policy, Series 908, and in Record Group 6, Field Offices, Subgroup 1, Paris.

Physical Description: 28 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 69 __Boxes __28 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

This series includes material for grants given to organizations that are national in scope but that fall outside the Foundation's established program divisions. Files are organized alphabetically. This series includes documentation of grants given as the result of the founder's designation and grants to such institutions as the American Baptist Home Mission Society, the American Council on Education, Biological Abstracts, a bird refuge in Louisiana, the Bureau of Municipal Research, the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, the National Research Council, and prominent universities such as Johns Hopkins, Harvard and Yale. Also included in this series are files on the Foundation's support of the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Scholars and its support for Refugee Scholars during the 1930s and 1940s.

Arrangement note

The 200 Series is divided into 15 subseries according to program. Because this is a large series, each subseries is described separately.

General note

The 200 Series, including subseries, consists of 417 manuscript boxes and is 167 cubic feet in size.

United States - Medical Sciences, 1913-1965

Physical Description: 51 __Boxes __20 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

Most of the files in this section date from the 1930's and 40's. The Foundation's program in the medical sciences during this period was directed by Dr. Alan Gregg and was concentrated in psychiatry and neurology and related subjects - neuroanatomy, heredity, endocrinology, neuropathology, child guidance, industrial psychology and sex research. Emphasis was placed on worker training, selected research projects and measures to improve or extend the application of existing knowledge. The medical sciences program also devoted part of its resources to the development of university teaching departments of public health. The program was conceived to be complementary to the natural sciences program in human biology. Although it developed out of the old Division of Medical Education of the Foundation, the Medical Sciences division had no program in medical education in the United States, except for a small program of post-war medical fellowship grants to leading universities.

United States - Nursing, 1914-1955

Physical Description: 3 __Boxes __1 cubic foot

Scope and Contents note

In this small subseries most of the material originated between the years 1918 and 1935. The files contain information relating to the development of public health nursing and to education for nurses in the eastern United States. Uniformity of standards in nurses training was the Foundation's main concern. At first the Foundation's program in nursing was administered by Edwin Embree as part of the program of the Division of Studies. After the reorganization of 1927-1938, nursing was transferred, first to the province of Richard M. Pearce and the Division of Medical Education, later to the International Health Division.

Personnel in nursing in the Rockefeller Foundation included F. Elizabeth Crowell, who worked mostly in the field, and Mary Beard, former president of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, who worked in the United States from 1925 to 1938. There is much of her correspondence in these files.

Related Archival Materials note

For information about projects in nursing in other countries see the appropriate country number. Nursing Fellowship files are in Record Group 10, Fellowships. In the files of the Paris Office, Record Group 6 Field Offices, Subgroup 1, there are fellowship and general correspondence files pertaining to nursing.

United States - Natural Sciences and Agriculture, 1921-1972

Physical Description: 19 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 45 __Boxes __19 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The Foundation's program in natural sciences developed from the old programs of the IEB and GEB. Under the direction of Wickliffe Rose, those organizations emphasized mathematics, physics, and chemistry. After a trial period, 1929-1932, during which the natural sciences division had five directors or acting directors, Warren Weaver was appointed director, remaining until 1951. A new program was developed, at first called "vital processes," later "modern experimental biology," to meet the desire of the Trustees for a people-oriented program based on the idea that the natural sciences were essential to medicine. The programs in medical science and natural science were intended to be complementary.

This group of files contains material mostly from the 1930's and 40's relating to research projects in subjects such as biophysics, biochemistry, genetics and physiology. A number of European refugee scholars were aided under this program. The application of physical and chemical techniques to biology, genetics and nutrition was of special interest. There are no files relating to agriculture in this subseries.

Physical Description: 108 __Boxes __43 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The Foundation's earliest program in the humanities was inherited from the International Education Board and the General Education Board. Edward Capps, director in 1929-1930, administered a program concentrating on teaching and research in classical studies, emphasizing fluid research funds. For two years humanities was without a director until David H. Stevens was appointed in 1932. Subsequently a new program was developed emphasizing improved world communication through national libraries and teaching of essential languages. In early years 1932-1939, this program was concentrated on four main geographical areas - the Far East, Latin America, the Slavic region and the United States. Support was also given to early experiments in microfilm and radio research.

During the war years, 1939-1945, early experience in mass communication proved valuable, and support was given for work in microfilm, especially for preservation of endangered records, for radio listening centers and propaganda analysis, and public opinion polling. Language training continued to be important. European humanists were aided in their efforts to reach this country and resume productive lives.

After 1945, although support for Far East and Slavic studies continued, there was a new emphasis on America in the Foundation's program, seen in grants for regional studies and grants in aid of American scholarly publishing.

Humanities in creative aspects had support chiefly in the advance of community and university drama. A substantial grant was made to start the Berkshire Music Center.

Mostly material from the 1930's - 1950's. David H. Stevens remained director of the humanities program until 1950. There was no foundation in the arts at this time.

Scope and Contents note

The Rockefeller Foundation took over from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial a well developed program in the social sciences. This program had emphasized the promotion of fundamental and applied social sciences and research in the areas of social disturbance and problems of socially maladjusted groups.

In 1933, the Trustees of the Foundation called for a program in human relations complementary to the medical science program in psychiatry and the natural sciences program in human biology. A program was developed which included international relations, economic stabilization, social security, the public administration. Special objectives of this program were the training of technical and administrative personnel and liaison between practitioner and research groups in these fields. Grants were made to organizations such as the Foreign Policy Association, the National Bureau of Economic Research, the Institute of Pacific Relations and the Brookings Institution. Projects at leading universities were aided.

Other fields in which the Foundation had an interest include housing, cultural anthropology, and criminology. These were never developed fully. There was always a strong interest in strengthening the social science field, especially through such organizations as the American Association of Schools of Social Work and the Social Science Research Council. Most of the files in this section are from the 30's and 40's.

Directors of the social science program were Edmund E. Day (1929-1937), Sydnor H. Walker, Acting (1937-1938), and Joseph H. Willits (1939-1954).

Brazil, 1916-1969

Physical Description: 22.8 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 57 __Boxes __22.8 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

Early Brazilian material (1916-1940) reflects The Rockefeller Foundation's commitment to public health and hygiene, including work to control diseases as hookworm, malaria, and yellow fever. Yellow fever was a dominant concern of The Foundation in Brazil from 1927 to 1955; the Foundation operated two laboratories in Bahia and Rio de Janeiro. The voluminous yellow fever files contain staff diaries and journals, laboratory diaries, records of surveys and tests, and case histories. Other early grants went to the Sao Paulo Faculty of Medicine and schools of nursing in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. In the 1940s and 1950s agricultural projects became a major concern. During this period, grants to programs in the natural sciences, particularly at the University of Sao Paolo, were also numerous.

Brazil - Hookworm

Scope and Contents note

Early Brazilian material (1916-1940) reflects The Rockefeller Foundation's commitment to public health and hygiene, including work to control diseases as hookworm, malaria, and yellow fever. Yellow fever was a dominant concern of The Foundation in Brazil from 1927 to 1955; the Foundation operated two laboratories in Bahia and Rio de Janeiro. The voluminous yellow fever files contain staff diaries and journals, laboratory diaries, records of surveys and tests, and case histories. Other early grants went to the Sao Paulo Faculty of Medicine and schools of nursing in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. In the 1940s and 1950s agricultural projects became a major concern. During this period, grants to programs in the natural sciences, particularly at the University of Sao Paolo, were also numerous.

Brazil - Humanities and Arts

Scope and Contents note

Early Brazilian material (1916-1940) reflects The Rockefeller Foundation's commitment to public health and hygiene, including work to control diseases as hookworm, malaria, and yellow fever. Yellow fever was a dominant concern of The Foundation in Brazil from 1927 to 1955; the Foundation operated two laboratories in Bahia and Rio de Janeiro. The voluminous yellow fever files contain staff diaries and journals, laboratory diaries, records of surveys and tests, and case histories. Other early grants went to the Sao Paulo Faculty of Medicine and schools of nursing in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. In the 1940s and 1950s agricultural projects became a major concern. During this period, grants to programs in the natural sciences, particularly at the University of Sao Paolo, were also numerous.

Scope and Contents note

The early (1920's) material in these files concerns the medical sciences and includes a report on medical education in Mexico which was part of a world-wide Rockefeller Foundation survey of medical education. Public health related records also begin in the 1920's and continue into the 1940's; these records concern Foundation work with typhoid fever, hookworm, malaria, and health demonstration units.

Records relating to the agricultural program in Mexico span the years from 1933 to 1956, with the bulk of the material dated between 1945 and 1955. In 1943, the Foundation launched its renowned Mexican agricultural program. This program administered by The Rockefeller Foundation, included research by resident Foundation staff to improve Mexico's major food crops; fellowships, scholarships, and travel grants to train Mexican agricultural scientists as well as scientists from other countries; and grants to universities and other institutions to support education and research in agricultural science. The agricultural program records are found in 323, with the exception of institutional grants which are located in 323 D. Additional records of the Foundation agricultural program in Mexico are located in RG 1.2, Series 323.

Files from the 1940's and 1950's also resulted from RF grants to institutions in the areas of medical research and education, the natural sciences (mathematics, chemistry, physics), and the humanities and social sciences (libraries and museums, history and anthropology, music).

Arrangement note

Uruguay - Humanities and Arts

Scope and Contents note

The majority of material in this series deals with grants to the Institute of Biological Sciences at Montevideo (1941-1925) under the direction of Clemente Estable. There is also a report (1917-1925) on medical education in Uruguay; this report resulted from a world-wide Rockefeller Foundation survey of medical education. In addition, the Foundation supported several natural science projects and a nursing school at the University of Montevideo during the 1940's and 1950's.

England, 1919-1960

Physical Description: 10.4 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 83 __Boxes __10.4 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The earliest material in this series documents The Rockefeller Foundation's concern with medical education. Of particular interest are files related to the support of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and a report by Richard M. Pearce on medical education in England (1923-1926). Numerous fellowships were awarded English medical students, especially during and immediately after World War II.

After 1928, the Foundation's activities expanded into the humanities and social sciences. Among the first non-US grants in these areas were made to the British Museum, the Bodleian Library (Oxford), and the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Other fields of interest for the Foundation in England include nursing, physics, biochemistry, organic chemistry, and placement of refugee scholars.

Arrangement note

Nine subseries as follows:

401 (no program letter, general material which does not fit into a particular program area)

401 A Medical sciences (research conducted in medical schools or medical research institutes, research directly applicable to the mental and physical health of human beings)

401 C Nursing (nursing education, public health nursing)

401 D Natural sciences and agriculture (research usually conducted in departments outside of medical schools, research in pure science, veterinary medicine or agriculture)

401 E Fellowships, training awards

401 F Declinations (within program, or outside program but receiving more consideration than a flat declination, i.e. request circulated to a number of officers for opinion before declining; outside opinion solicited; considerable correspondence leading to the declination)

401 I Malaria

401 R Humanities and arts

401 S Social sciences

England - Nursing

Scope and Contents note

The earliest material in this series documents The Rockefeller Foundation's concern with medical education. Of particular interest are files related to the support of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and a report by Richard M. Pearce on medical education in England (1923-1926). Numerous fellowships were awarded English medical students, especially during and immediately after World War II.

After 1928, the Foundation's activities expanded into the humanities and social sciences. Among the first non-US grants in these areas were made to the British Museum, the Bodleian Library (Oxford), and the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Other fields of interest for the Foundation in England include nursing, physics, biochemistry, organic chemistry, and placement of refugee scholars.

England - Fellowships, Training Awards

Scope and Contents note

The earliest material in this series documents The Rockefeller Foundation's concern with medical education. Of particular interest are files related to the support of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and a report by Richard M. Pearce on medical education in England (1923-1926). Numerous fellowships were awarded English medical students, especially during and immediately after World War II.

After 1928, the Foundation's activities expanded into the humanities and social sciences. Among the first non-US grants in these areas were made to the British Museum, the Bodleian Library (Oxford), and the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Other fields of interest for the Foundation in England include nursing, physics, biochemistry, organic chemistry, and placement of refugee scholars.

England - Social Sciences

Scope and Contents note

The earliest material in this series documents The Rockefeller Foundation's concern with medical education. Of particular interest are files related to the support of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and a report by Richard M. Pearce on medical education in England (1923-1926). Numerous fellowships were awarded English medical students, especially during and immediately after World War II.

After 1928, the Foundation's activities expanded into the humanities and social sciences. Among the first non-US grants in these areas were made to the British Museum, the Bodleian Library (Oxford), and the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Other fields of interest for the Foundation in England include nursing, physics, biochemistry, organic chemistry, and placement of refugee scholars.

Physical Description: 35 __ Boxes __ 14 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The first Foundation grant to Canada was as part of a relief effort in Newfoundland (1914). As part of regular program oriented support, the Foundation supported various medical and public health projects, especially between 1920 and 1950. Dalhousie and McGill University, the Universities of Manitoba and Montreal, and various Provincial governments were the main beneficiaries of the Foundation's interests in these areas.

In the humanities, the Foundation gave grants for folklore studies, library surveys, and drama, mainly in the 1940's. Support for the social sciences came mainly through grants and fellowships administered by the Canadian social Science Research Council (1940-1957) and various universities.

Canada - Public Health Demonstrations

Scope and Contents note

The first Foundation grant to Canada was as part of a relief effort in Newfoundland (1914). As part of regular program oriented support, the Foundation supported various medical and public health projects, especially between 1920 and 1950. Dalhousie and McGill University, the Universities of Manitoba and Montreal, and various Provincial governments were the main beneficiaries of the Foundation's interests in these areas.

In the humanities, the Foundation gave grants for folklore studies, library surveys, and drama, mainly in the 1940's. Support for the social sciences came mainly through grants and fellowships administered by the Canadian social Science Research Council (1940-1957) and various universities.

Canada - Tuberculosis

Scope and Contents note

The first Foundation grant to Canada was as part of a relief effort in Newfoundland (1914). As part of regular program oriented support, the Foundation supported various medical and public health projects, especially between 1920 and 1950. Dalhousie and McGill University, the Universities of Manitoba and Montreal, and various Provincial governments were the main beneficiaries of the Foundation's interests in these areas.

In the humanities, the Foundation gave grants for folklore studies, library surveys, and drama, mainly in the 1940's. Support for the social sciences came mainly through grants and fellowships administered by the Canadian social Science Research Council (1940-1957) and various universities.

India, 1913-1915, 1924-1971

Physical Description: 9.8 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 20 __Boxes __9.8 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The earliest Foundation grant to India (1913) was made to the All-India School of Hygiene and Public Health at Calcutta. This school continued to be the major institutional recipient of Foundation aid in the areas of public health and medical education until 1950.

Of particular interest in this series is a 30 volume manuscript survey and history of medical education in India by W. S. Carter (1926-1927).

During the 1930's and 1940's the Foundation supported various rural health programs, developmental aid to nursing, and a survey of librarianship during this period. From 1951 to 1971 the Foundation's main interest in India was expressed through its virus disease research program. Researchers should note that material covering virus research is filed under both 464 and 464 V.

The Foundation also funded public health and anti-malaria work in the independent Indian states of Mysore (464.1), Sawantwadi (464.4), and Travancore (464.5) from 1928 to 1944. After independence was granted India in 1947, these numerical designations were dropped from the Foundation's classification scheme.

Arrangement note

Ten subseries as follows:

464 (no program letter; general material which does not fit into a particular program area)

464 A Medical sciences (research conducted in medical schools or medical research institutes, research directly applicable to the mental and physical health of human beings)

464 C Nursing (nursing education, public health nursing)

India - Medical Sciences

Scope and Contents note

The earliest Foundation grant to India (1913) was made to the All-India School of Hygiene and Public Health at Calcutta. This school continued to be the major institutional recipient of Foundation aid in the areas of public health and medical education until 1950.

Of particular interest in this series is a 30 volume manuscript survey and history of medical education in India by W. S. Carter (1926-1927).

During the 1930's and 1940's the Foundation supported various rural health programs, developmental aid to nursing, and a survey of librarianship during this period. From 1951 to 1971 the Foundation's main interest in India was expressed through its virus disease research program. Researchers should note that material covering virus research is filed under both 464 and 464 V.

The Foundation also funded public health and anti-malaria work in the independent Indian states of Mysore (464.1), Sawantwadi (464.4), and Travancore (464.5) from 1928 to 1944. After independence was granted India in 1947, these numerical designations were dropped from the Foundation's classification scheme.

Scope and Contents note

The earliest Foundation grant to India (1913) was made to the All-India School of Hygiene and Public Health at Calcutta. This school continued to be the major institutional recipient of Foundation aid in the areas of public health and medical education until 1950.

Of particular interest in this series is a 30 volume manuscript survey and history of medical education in India by W. S. Carter (1926-1927).

During the 1930's and 1940's the Foundation supported various rural health programs, developmental aid to nursing, and a survey of librarianship during this period. From 1951 to 1971 the Foundation's main interest in India was expressed through its virus disease research program. Researchers should note that material covering virus research is filed under both 464 and 464 V.

The Foundation also funded public health and anti-malaria work in the independent Indian states of Mysore (464.1), Sawantwadi (464.4), and Travancore (464.5) from 1928 to 1944. After independence was granted India in 1947, these numerical designations were dropped from the Foundation's classification scheme.

Physical Description: 32 __Boxes __13 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

Grants to French institutions were made primarily in the medical sciences field. The earliest grants were awarded for the campaign against tuberculosis, from which the Foundation's nursing program was created. The University of Paris was the major recipient of grants for the medical sciences. Funds were given for work by Th. Alajouanine, Jean Scherrer, and Clovis Vincent in neurology and neurosurgery and by Georges Heuyer in psychiatry. Funding was given to the Radium Institute in the 1920's, 1930's, and 1940's. The University of Lyons and the University of Strasbourg were also recipients of a relatively large number of medical sciences grants. In addition, there are files dealing with the Pearce report on French medical education which was part of a report on medical education throughout the world.

The Rockefeller Foundation also gave funding to a full range of humanities and social sciences programs. A large number of grants were given for work in philosophy. Grants were also given for a broad range of studies including art history and geography and ethnology. A number of humanities and social sciences grants were made to refugee scholars, including Richard Alewyn (German Literature), Elias Bickermann (Greek archeology), Kurt Sachs (music history), Julius Lewy (Assyriology), and Paul Schrecker (Philosophy).

The American Library in Paris and the Bibliotheque Nationale also received Foundation support.

The University of Lyons and the University of Strasbourg were also recipients of a relatively large number of medical sciences grants. In addition, there are files dealing with the Pearce report on French medical education which was part of a report on medical education throughout the world.

The Rockefeller Foundation also gave funding to a full range of humanities and social sciences programs. A large number of grants were given for work in philosophy. Grants were also given for a broad range of studies including art history and geography and ethnology. A number of humanities and social sciences grants were made to refugee scholars, including Richard Alewyn (German Literature), Elias Bickermann (Greek archeology), Kurt Sachs (music history), Julius Lewy (Assyriology), and Paul Schrecker (Philosophy).

The American Library in Paris and the Bibliotheque Nationale also received Foundation support.

France - Tuberculosis

Scope and Contents note

Grants to French institutions were made primarily in the medical sciences field. The earliest grants were awarded for the campaign against tuberculosis, from which the Foundation's nursing program was created. The University of Paris was the major recipient of grants for the medical sciences. Funds were given for work by Th. Alajouanine, Jean Scherrer, and Clovis Vincent in neurology and neurosurgery and by Georges Heuyer in psychiatry. Funding was given to the Radium Institute in the 1920's, 1930's, and 1940's. The University of Lyons and the University of Strasbourg were also recipients of a relatively large number of medical sciences grants. In addition, there are files dealing with the Pearce report on French medical education which was part of a report on medical education throughout the world.

The Rockefeller Foundation also gave funding to a full range of humanities and social sciences programs. A large number of grants were given for work in philosophy. Grants were also given for a broad range of studies including art history and geography and ethnology. A number of humanities and social sciences grants were made to refugee scholars, including Richard Alewyn (German Literature), Elias Bickermann (Greek archeology), Kurt Sachs (music history), Julius Lewy (Assyriology), and Paul Schrecker (Philosophy).

The American Library in Paris and the Bibliotheque Nationale also received Foundation support.

China, 1913-1960

Physical Description: 21 Cubic Feet

Physical Description: 53 __Boxes __21 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

From 1913 to 1928 the Foundation's interests in China were directed by the China Medical Board, a division of the foundation. In 1928 the China Medical Board was separately incorporated and the functions continued by the Foundation were transferred to the Foundation's Division of Medical Education. Series 601 contains material after 1928, except for the Historical Records, which go back to 1913. Although the bulk of the material originated before 1945, there is also correspondence as late as 1960. The material consists of correspondence, memos, and reports relating to specific grants, and reports of a general nature which are filed in the 601 (General) section. A section on program and policy contains administrative and policy information in various forms.

Major areas of interest were agriculture and rural economics, public health and medicine. Grants were made predominantly to hospitals, universities and institutes of research. Of special interest are the files on rural reconstruction, the Mass Education movement, and the Peking Union Medical College.

Arrangement note

Ten subseries as follows:

601 (no program letter; general material which does not fit into a particular program area)

China - Medical Sciences

Scope and Contents note

From 1913 to 1928 the Foundation's interests in China were directed by the China Medical Board, a division of the foundation. In 1928 the China Medical Board was separately incorporated and the functions continued by the Foundation were transferred to the Foundation's Division of Medical Education. Series 601 contains material after 1928, except for the Historical Records, which go back to 1913. Although the bulk of the material originated before 1945, there is also correspondence as late as 1960. The material consists of correspondence, memos, and reports relating to specific grants, and reports of a general nature which are filed in the 601 (General) section. A section on program and policy contains administrative and policy information in various forms.

Major areas of interest were agriculture and rural economics, public health and medicine. Grants were made predominantly to hospitals, universities and institutes of research. Of special interest are the files on rural reconstruction, the Mass Education movement, and the Peking Union Medical College.

China - Fellowships, scholarships, training awards

Scope and Contents note

From 1913 to 1928 the Foundation's interests in China were directed by the China Medical Board, a division of the foundation. In 1928 the China Medical Board was separately incorporated and the functions continued by the Foundation were transferred to the Foundation's Division of Medical Education. Series 601 contains material after 1928, except for the Historical Records, which go back to 1913. Although the bulk of the material originated before 1945, there is also correspondence as late as 1960. The material consists of correspondence, memos, and reports relating to specific grants, and reports of a general nature which are filed in the 601 (General) section. A section on program and policy contains administrative and policy information in various forms.

Major areas of interest were agriculture and rural economics, public health and medicine. Grants were made predominantly to hospitals, universities and institutes of research. Of special interest are the files on rural reconstruction, the Mass Education movement, and the Peking Union Medical College.

Physical Description: 5 __Boxes __2 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The records on Hungary document Foundation activity that almost exclusively related to medicine and public health. The University of Budapest received an extensive number of grants in such fields as pediatric medicine, phamacology, physiology and nursing. There is a file covering the work in biochemistry of Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, 1937 winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine and physiology. In the field of public health, the Foundation helped set up local health department in Godollo, Mezokovesd, Pecs, and Vac. There is also a grant, which ran from 1927 through 1931, to the State Hygienic Institute for a study on influenza.

Arrangement note

Rockefeller Foundation activity in Poland, as documented in these records, involved primarily the funding of biomedical research work, public health programs, and nursing. Biomedical research was funded at the Universities of Cracow, Lodz, Warsaw, and Wroclaw in such fields as neurology and neurosurgery, pathology, pediatrics, and physiology. Public health projects were funded in Bendzin, Lwow, Makotow, Skierniewice, Vilno, and Warszawa. Nursing programs were funded at the University of Cracow, for public health and bedside nursing, and at the Warsaw School of Nursing. There is a file on Richard M. Pearce's report on "Medical Education in Poland," which was part of a survey of medical education throughout the world.

There is a small amount of material relating to grants in the social sciences especially for economics studies.

Scope and Contents note

The Rockefeller Foundation's interest in Sweden began in the mid-1920's but grants were not distributed until the 1930's. The major portion of the grants were distributed through four of Sweden's research institutions, especially the Karolinska Institute and the University of Stockholm. Grants were concentrated in the medical sciences and natural sciences. A large portion of these grants were made to support scientists who were forced to flee the political upheaval in Europe from the mid-1930's through the post-war years.

Physical Description: 5 __Boxes __2 cubic feet

Scope and Contents note

The earliest files in this series relate to medical schools in Switzerland, part of the Rockefeller Foundation's world-wide study of medical education in the 1920's. Later grants to the Universities of Basel, Berne, Geneva and Zurich deal mostly with purchase of equipment for research in the natural sciences. Material from the later 1940's and 1950's primarily documents travel grants.

Arrangement note

Five subseries, as follows:

803 (no program letter; general material which does not fit into a particular program area)

803 A Medical sciences (research conducted in medical schools or medical research institutes, research directly applicable to the mental and physical health of human beings)

803 D Natural sciences and agriculture (research usually conducted in departments outside of medical schools, research in pure science, veterinary medicine or agriculture)

803 R Humanities and arts

803 S Social sciences
