Biographical / Historical

Oscar "Bud" Harkavy (1923-2019) was a foundation officer who worked for 35 years at the Ford Foundation. During his time at the Foundation, he worked in its Economic Development and Administration, Population, and Urban Poverty Programs.

Harkavy joined the Ford Foundation in 1953. His work initially focused on the Foundation's program for modernizing business school curricula. From the 1950s to 1962, he was based in the Foundation's Economic Development and Administration Program, moving from Program Associate, to Acting Program Director, to Associate Director. He started his work with the Foundation's population programming in 1963 as Director of the Population Program. Following a change in the Foundation's program organization, the Foundation moved its population programming into its International Division, and Harkavy served as Officer in Charge of that Population Program from 1966 to 1980. Harkavy spent the remainder of his time at the Foundation as a Chief Program Officer in its Urban Poverty Program. He left the Foundation in 1988.

After leaving the Ford Foundation, Harkavy served as a consultant to the Population Council and a Board Chairman for the Population Resource Council. He helped found the Life After the Ford Foundation Society (LAFF) in 1991. He served as LAFF Vice President until 1995 and then as LAFF President for two years.

Harkavy completed his undergraduate education at Columbia College and earned a Master's Degree in business administration and a Ph.D. in economics from Syracuse University.
