Biographical / Historical

Michele Heisler is a doctor, human rights advocate, and former program officer at the Ford Foundation. Heisler initially worked as an Assistant Program Officer in the Ford Foundation's Developing Country Programs. Following a change in the Foundation's programming structure, Heisler became an Assistant Program Officer in the Latin America and Caribbean Programs.

After leaving the Ford Foundation, Heisler worked as a consultant to the United Nations Truth Commission in El Salvador. Some of Heisler's early work with Physicians for Human Rights (PHR) consisted of consulting with a focus on research and writing studies when she was a medical student. From between 2010 and 2019, she served on the PHR Board of Directors and then became the organization's Medical Director. She has also worked as a professor of internal medicine and public health at the University of Michigan.

Heisler earned her M.D. from Harvard University, her M.P.A. from Princeton University, and completed a residency in internal medicine and health services research training at the University of Michigan as a Robert Wood Johnson Clinical Scholar.
