Biographical / Historical

The Rockefeller Foundation

The Rockefeller Foundation was established by act of the New York State Legislature approved by the Governor on May 14, 1913, "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world." Between 1913 and 1928 the China Medical Board, the International Health Board, and the Division of Medical Education functioned as divisions of the Foundation, concentrating on the administration of programs in public health and medical education. A Division of Studies was created in 1923 to handle projects outside the medical field. These early years were experimental as the new foundation studied the methods of philanthropy and explored its relationships with other Rockefeller boards.

Although the Rockefeller Foundation is the largest and best known philanthropy founded by the Rockefeller family, it was neither the first nor the last to be established. The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research (1901), the General Education Board (1902), the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission for the Eradication of Hookworm Disease (1909), and the Bureau of Social Hygiene (1911) all existed earlier. When the Foundation was created, the Sanitary Commission was disbanded. After the establishment of the Foundation, the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial (1918) and the International Education Board (1923) were created.

The Rockefeller boards and their programs were reconsidered and reorganized in 1927-1928 in order to avoid overlapping programs. The International Health Board of the Foundation was disbanded and an International Health Division was organized. The China Medical Board, Inc., was established as a separately incorporated institution, and the China Medical Board of the Foundation ceased to exist. The Division of Studies was dropped and the Division of Medical Education was phased out. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial was combined with the Foundation and the Spelman Fund of New York was chartered to continue activities of the LSRM that were not absorbed by the Foundation. The International Education Board was disbanded.

As a result of this reorganization, the Foundation adopted a program which included public health work (administered by the IHD), the advancement of knowledge in the medical and natural sciences (in part taken over from the IEB), the social sciences (formerly the field of the LSRM), and the humanities and arts (shared with the GEB). The Rockefeller Institute and the Bureau of Social Hygiene were not affected by the reorganization. The program adopted by the Foundation at this time remained basically the same for the next twenty years.

As its files accumulated, the Foundation maintained a card index recording the names of institutional and individual grantees and correspondents. A microfilm copy of this index is available at the Archive Center.

Collection Inventory

Correspondence, 1910-1927

Correspondence - General, Oct. 6, 1910 - Dec. 31, 1927

Scope and Contents note

subseries 1.1, Correspondence, General, is the administrative file of the International Health Commission and the International Health Board. It was collected in a central file, probably by a stenographer in charge of filing, Bertha Matson, who worked under Dr. J. A. Ferrell, the Assistant Director-General. In 1928, when the International Health Division superseded the Board, the Rockefeller Foundation also created a general correspondence file (Record Group 2). The Division's general correspondence is interfiled with that of the Foundation from 1928 through 1951, when the Division was disbanded.

The subseries consists mostly of letters to persons outside the organization or letters on subjects not directly related to specific projects. Occasional memoranda, reports and other material that is not strictly correspondence will be found in this subseries. Topics include insurance, leasing arrangements, customs clearance matters, exhibits, requests for information, meetings, subscriptions, reprints, invitations, declinations, itineraries, and routine correspondence with field staff on accounting and supply matters. Investigations in areas of possible project interest are included. Also included are letters that seem to belong in project files. Their presence can be credited to the field staff's tendency to cover several subjects in one letter and to the vagaries of the file clerk.

There are no complete files of administrative officers' correspondence collected as such. Their letters are dispersed throughout the files under the names of the addressees. However, a small amount of "personal" correspondence was kept for some officers, usually regarding some outside philanthropic interest. These folders will be found at the end of the year in which they were created, except for 1919 and 1920, which are in place alphabetically.

Arrangement note

The file is divided by year. Within each year, the arrangement is alphabetical by the name of the outside correspondent, then chronological under each name. Letters and replies are interfiled. Letters about a person may be filed under that person's name. Letters are also filed under names of institutions, companies or publications, as well as under some subject headings, such as "Equipment," "Leprosy" and "Mailing List." (The latter contains numerous changes of address for staff and fellows, plus some trip itineraries, and is useful in establishing the whereabouts of persons at particular times.)

Folder headings show alphabetical segments--"A-Ad", "Ae-Al," etc. Folders for individual correspondents are inserted when necessitated by volume; these follow the appropriate alphabetical segment. Letters and replies between two field staff members with individual folders are filed separately, not interfiled.

Documents were marked in red in the upper corner with the alphabetical letter under which they were to be filed; the determining name was also usually underlined in red. Later, the complete name was written in red in the upper right corner. In the case of company names or subject headings, occasional subheadings were used to indicate the writer, as in "Leprosy - Smith." Such letters would be arranged alphabetically by subheading within the "Leprosy" folder.

General note

There is a card index to IHC and IHB correspondence. It directs the user to the filing markup entered on the document and to the years for which the material was retained. The existence of material dated prior to 1917 is indicated on the cards by an ampersand (&). The index is not comprehensive. Some names that should have been indexed were not, and some indexed documents no longer exist. Some files were reclassified without revision of the index. This index is not included in the Rockefeller Foundation main index, but many entries in the RF main index are cross-referenced to the IHB index.

The filing and indexing system allowed considerable opportunity for interpretation. Cross-referencing was by no means exhaustive. To insure thorough research, it is wise to check all possible classifications for any particular document.

General note

There is a card index to IHC and IHB correspondence. It directs the user to the filing markup entered on the document and to the years for which the material was retained. The existence of material dated prior to 1917 is indicated on the cards by an ampersand (&). The index is not comprehensive. Some names that should have been indexed were not, and some indexed documents no longer exist. Some files were reclassified without revision of the index. This index is not included in the Rockefeller Foundation main index, but many entries in the RF main index are cross-referenced to the IHB index.

The filing and indexing system allowed considerable opportunity for interpretation. Cross-referencing was by no means exhaustive. To insure thorough research, it is wise to check all possible classifications for any particular document.

Arrangement

The project correspondence is arranged chronologically by year and then within each year by country code or series.

subseries 2 Photographs

Sometime prior to 1972, the photographs in the reports in this subseries were removed by Robert Clahn, preparatory to processing them for storage in the photograph collection. In some cases, he replaced the pages removed with photocopies of those pages, particularly where the pages included some text from the reports. The photographs were not processed, however, and remained in temporary storage until 1977.

In November, 1977, Steven Gelston and Warren Hovious completed the processing of these photos. They are now interfiled with other photos from the Rockefeller Foundation archives. The inventory for subseries 2, Special Reports, indicates where photos were removed from reports. The Processing Room copy of this inventory is now annotated to show the file classification number under which these photos will be found in the photo collection. The photos from any given report will be found together in one folder. The name of the report is the folder heading, and folder is also marked "RG 5, S 2."

Researchers using reports from which photos were removed should be given the corresponding photo folders along with the reports.

Rockefeller Institute Virus Laboratories, 1915-(1929-1949)-1964 (bulk)

Scope and Contents note

The Rockefeller Institute Virus Laboratories (RIVL) served as the base laboratory for the virus studies conducted by the Rockefeller Foundation's International Health Board/Division (IHB/D). Beginning in 1916, when William C. Gorgas' special commission visited South America, the IHB/D supported field research as part of its international campaign against yellow fever. By the late 1920's, the difficulty and expense of conducting field research in Brazil and West Africa made apparent the need for a central lab for the completion of promising viral investigations developed in those primitive settings. At the urging of Frederick F. Russell, IHD director, such a lab was established in 1929. Headed by Wilbur A. Sawyer, the lab rented space at The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York City.

In its early years the RIVL was devoted primarily to yellow fever research, resulting in the 1935 development of the vaccine 17D by Dr. Max Theiler. As yellow fever research became increasingly successful, other viral diseases drew the attention of the IHD scientists. By 1944, as World War II presented the prospect of mass epidemics, attention was focused on twelve specific diseases. Most notable among these were influenza, malaria, typhus and yellow fever. The final stage of RIVL research, begun in 1949, was the collection and classification of arboviruses (viruses carried by insects). Again, field labs were established around the world with the New York lab serving as the central clearinghouse. In December of 1964 the New York lab was incorporated into the Yale School of Medicine, becoming the Yale Arbovirus Research Unit.

The title of this subseries may be misleading. It documents not just the work of the Rockefeller Institute Virus Lab but the activities of the IHB/D scientists in the field. The RIVL records reflect the role of the New York lab as the base lab and reveal the informal information network used by the IHB/D scientists to keep one another informed. Instead of preparing systematic reports, the scientists wrote lengthy, detailed letters to exchange opinions and to describe their work, travels and personnel matters. The research most frequently discussed concerns the epidemiology, diagnosis and control of influenza, malaria, typhus and yellow fever.

There is also extensive correspondence on routine matters such as the ordering of supplies, equipment and animal stock; travel itineraries; and manuscript critiques. Collaborations with chemical and pharmaceutical firms and government agencies also are documented. There is some administrative material but very little revealing the organizational structure or administration of the New York or other labs, their role within the IHB/D, or the overall administration of the IHB/D.

Research in the RIVL records requires creativity as well as familiarity with the topic on the part of the researcher. Material on any given person or subject can be found in several different files. For example, to locate material on a particular scientist the research should look at that scientist's file and also at the files of those individuals with whom the scientist was likely to have corresponded.

The RIVL records are international in scope with a concentration on Latin America, Africa and the U.S. The files are in alphabetical order with a chronological arrangement within each folder. The earliest records are equipment lists from 1915 but the bulk of the material covers the mid-1920s through 1949.
