Physical Description:	16.28 Cubic Feet
Language of the Material:	English
Abstract:	In 1982 CLEPR grant files were given to the Ford Foundation Archives by Maximilian W. Kempner, secretary and attorney for CLEPR as well as a member of its Board of Directors and Executive Committee. The Council on Legal Education for Professional Responsibilities, Inc. (CLEPR) was established in 1968 with a $6 million, five-year general support grant from the Ford Foundation. In 1973 CLEPR received a $5 million grant from the Ford Foundation for a second five-year period. CLEPR also received a $290,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Justice Law Enforcement Assistance and Administration program in 1970. The Council was in operation from 1968 until 1981 and was legally dissolved in 1983. CLEPR was successor to the National Council on Legal Clinics and the Council on Education in Professional Responsibilities (both Ford Foundation-supported). Like its predecessors, its goal was to encourage the development of clinical legal education: practical lawyer-client experience for law students while under law school supervision. To this end, CLEPR gave grants to develop clinical projects for law students, to develop teaching and supervisory faculty for the programs and to advocate clinical legal education through publications and conferences.

Scope and Contents

The Council on Legal Education for Professional Responsibility (CLEPR) collection consists of eighteen feet of grant files, 1968-1974. The grant files document the administration of each CLEPR grant--the proposal, terms of approval, interim, annual, and final reports, correspondence between CLEPR and the grantee, and other grant-related material. The papers also include documentation of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (U.S. Department of Justice) grant to CLEPR for model Prosecutor/Law Student clinical programs. The papers do not contain CLEPR office files, rejected grant proposals, financial records, CLEPR Executive Committee minutes, or grant files created after 1975.

CLEPR awarded grants to law schools in the United States, Canada, and some developing countries to start or improve clinical legal education programs; to individuals for travel and study to improve clinical legal education programs; and to institutions to sponsor conferences. Specific examples include grants to: the University of Tennessee or legal services for lower-income groups with economic and business development needs, Georgetown University for support for the student-staffed public interest law center, Yale University for supervision of student-run Legal Services Organization.

The Ford Foundation Archives holds additional material related to CLEPR. "Enhancing Theory with Practice," by Lance Liebman, is a 1972 evaluation of four years of CLEPR activities (report #002165). The Ford Foundation grant to CLEPR (grant file PA68-894) contains grant correspondence, reports, evaluations and CLEPR newsletters and publications.

This register includes three appendices: an alphabetical list of CLEPR grantees (1968-74), CLEPR grantees 1975-78, and CLEPR Officers and Directors.

Arrangement

Because its "original order" consisted of one or more alphabetical sequences within some years, it was decided to arrange the files chronologically by grant number.

Each CLEPR grant number consists of the last two digits of the year the grant was awarded, a hyphen, and the next available number, e.g. 70-09 was the ninth grant awarded in 1970. Some grant numbers also include a mnemonic letter: J=Justice Department, F=Fellowship. For example 72-01J was a CLEPR grant to Georgetown University for which CLEPR received grant funds from the Justice Department. In other instances the letter following the grant number, e.g. 71-34b, differentiates two grants with the same number. 71-34 was a grant given to Columbia University; 71-34b was a separate grant also given to Columbia University for a different purpose.

The dates listed for each grant file indicate the duration of the grant.

The grant file format is similar to the format of the Ford Foundation grant file: (1) grant proposal, recommendation and approval letters, (2) correspondence including interim, annual and evaluation reports, and (3) miscellaneous grant materials. Within each of these sections, items are filed in reverse chronological order.

It should be noted that some grant files are missing some of these documents.
