Biographical / Historical

Eva "Lini" Wollenberg is a natural resource management specialist who worked for several years at the Ford Foundation. Wollenberg joined the Foundation in 1991 as an Assistant Program Officer for the Foundation's Asia Programs. In 1993, she was promoted to Program Officer. Together with Mary Hobley, she wrote a program review of the Ford Foundation's support for community forestry in Asia in 1994, titled "Experiences and Advances in the Development of Community Forestry Programming: A Review of Ford Foundation Supported Community Forestry Programs in Asia."

After leaving the Ford Foundation in 1994, Wollenberg became the Principal Scientist at the Center for International Forestry Research (CIFOR). She then joined the University of Vermont in 2007 as the Director of the Center for Sustainable Agriculture. Later, she became a Research Professor at the Gund Institute for Environment and the Rubenstein School of Environment and Natural Resources. She also became the Flagship Leader for Low Emissions Development for Climate Change, Agriculture and Food Security (CCAFS).

Wollenberg earned a B.S. in conservation/resource studies, a M.S. in wildland resource science, and a Ph.D. in wildland resource science from the University of California, Berkeley.
