Biographical/Historical note

Wallace Buttrick was born on October 3, 1853, on a farm in Potsdam, New York. In 1857, his family moved to Madrid, New York, and later to Ogdensburg where he spent most of his youth.

Mr. Buttrick attended the Ogdensburg Academy and later the Potsdam Normal School. His education was interrupted when his father became ill, and he then secured a job as a messenger in the State Capitol at Albany. This proved unsuitable, and in 1875 he took a position as railroad mail agent between Rome, New York, and Ogdensburg.

In 1880, Mr. Buttrick moved to Rochester where he entered the Divinity School. His first pastorate was the First Baptist Church of New Haven. He was always interested in the West, and he moved to the First Church of St. Paul, Minnesota in 1890. While in Minnesota, Mr. Buttrick engaged in lively controversies with the city administration. In 1892, he moved east to the Emmanuel Church of Albany where he stayed for nearly 10 years.

In 1902, Mr. Buttrick joined the General Education Board as Secretary.

Wallace Buttrick died on May 27, 1926.
