Biographical / Historical

Island Resources Foundation (IRF) was established in 1972 in St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands as a Caribbean-based, small-island-focused, and environment-themed non-governmental organization. The foundation decided to shut down in 2016. Their mission was often project-based research, educational outreach, information sharing, technical expertise and capacity building.

The IRF was founded by Ed Towle, who was also the first president from 1972-1998. Without his influence the emergence of a conservation ethic in the Caribbean in the 1960s and 1970s would have been less intellectually rigorous, less open and expansive in its outreach, and less sustainable during a time when the region had other priorities.
