Biographical/Historical note

Karl Landsteiner was born in Vienna, Austria on June 14, 1868, and died on June 26, 1943 in New York. Karl Landsteiner began his medical career in 1891 with an M.D. from the University of Vienna. After graduating from medical school, Landsteiner worked as a research chemist.

Landsteiner was a physician and researcher in physiology, demonstrated the dependence of immunological phenomena on chemical structure. He made an immense and lasting contribution by his studies on blood. In 1930, Landsteiner received the Nobel Prize for his research in 1900 identifying and classifying the human blood groups A, B, AB, and O. He wrote many papers on immunology, bacteriology, and pathology, especially on the chemistry of antigens; human blood groups; experimental drug allergy; studies on syphilis; etiology of paroxysmal hemoglobinuria and the etiology of poliomyelitis. Karl Landsteiner was affiliated with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research from 1922 until his death in 1943.

Revision Description

Paper finding aid converted to EAD/XML by AureXus in 2010. Imported into the Archivists' Toolkit by Becky Robbins. 6 August 2010

Custodial History note

In 1932, Dr. Merrill Chase came to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and began work with Karl Landsteiner. After Dr. Landsteiner's death, Dr. Chase carried on investigations and maintained custody of the Landsteiner laboratory notes and papers until he donated them to the Rockefeller University Archives over a period of five years starting in 1980. Some of the material was water-damaged in December 1982 while in Dr. Chase's care. Dr. Chase inserted his own notes and comments into the files. During 1968, Dr. Chase collected various publications and programs that honored the one hundredth anniversary of Karl Landsteiner's birth which have been included in the collection.
