Biographical / Historical

Beginning in the 1950s, the Ford Foundation has provided funds to improve the management of land and water, to strengthen policy making for the rural sector and to generate off-farm employment and income, especially for women. In addition, the Foundation supports efforts to increase the productivity of agriculture and to strengthen rural development organizations.

Biographical / Historical

Mildred E. Warner is a professor whose research and career has focused on economic development, environmental sustainability, agriculture, local government service delivery, and planning across generations. From 1985 to 1988, she worked as an Assistant Program Officer in the Ford Foundation's Rural Poverty and Resources Program.

Warner has worked at Cornell University since 1989, moving from Associate Director of the Community and Rural Development Institute to Assistant Professor in the Department of City and Regional Planning in 1998, to an Associate Professor in 2004, and then to a Professor in 2008. She joined the Department of Global Development in 2020.

Prior to joining the Ford Foundation, Warner worked as an Agricultural Extension Agent in Ecuador for the United States Peace Corps. She earned a B.A. in History from Oberlin College in 1979, a M.S. in Agricultural Economics from Cornell University in 1985, and a Ph.D. in Development Sociology from Cornell in 1997.
