Biographical / Historical

The Ford Foundation was chartered by Henry and Edsel Ford in 1936 "to receive and administer funds for scientific, educational and charitable purposes, all for the public welfare", and initially served the Ford family's charitable interests in the Detroit area. Following the deaths of Edsel Ford (1943) and Henry Ford (1947), the Foundation was propelled to the forefront of philanthropy as the largest American foundation in terms of both endowment and yearly expenditures, and with an international scope to its major program areas. During the Foundation's first twenty years its major programs were in international economic development, primary and higher education, educational and public broadcasting, behavioral sciences, civil liberties, urban development, fine arts and the humanities. The Ford Foundation also partnered with the Rockefeller Foundation in supporting agricultural development in South America, Africa, and Southeast Asia. Since the 1970s, the Foundation has also pioneered programs in women's rights, energy policy, micro-financing in under-developed countries, establishing human rights groups, and improving international HIV/AIDS education.

Scope and Contents

Collection contains the office files of Mark Elliott who worked as a Program Officer in the Ford Foundation's Urban Poverty Program during the early to mid-1990s. The collection is comprised of one series of subject files. Elliott's subject files document his activities for managing grants to housing and economic development programs, research studies, and projects as well as his participation in the Urban Poverty Program's planning and strategizing efforts. Materials within the collection extend back from before Elliott's tenure at the Foundation up until the point where the Urban Poverty Program was set to transition to become part of the new Asset Building and Community Development Program (ASSETS) in 1996.

The collection chiefly consists of correspondence, memos, notes, drafts, reports, press clippings, newsletters, brochures, publications, schedules, agendas, and Recommended Grant Action records (RGAs). Documents show that during Elliot's tenure as a Program Officer, the Urban Poverty Program supported and engaged with organizations and projects concerned with economic development, community development, housing, employment and job training, housing discrimination and segregation, urban reinvestment, and anti-poverty strategies.

Scope and Contents

Series contains the subject files Mark Elliott created when he worked as a Program Officer in the Ford Foundation's Urban Poverty Program. The files document the Foundation's support of programs, research studies, and projects concerned with economic development, community development, housing, homeownership, employment and job training, housing preservation, minority owned businesses, housing discrimination and segregation, self-sufficiency, urban reinvestment, and anti-poverty strategies. Common material formats found throughout the series include correspondence, memos, reports, drafts, notes, press clippings, newsletters, brochures, publications, agendas, schedules, and Recommended Grant Actions records (RGAs). Although Elliott served as a Program Officer in the 1990s, his files include material from as early as 1965. These records document the Urban Poverty Program's earlier work that extended into Elliott's tenure as well as older research papers and articles that Elliott acquired.

Elliott's correspondence chiefly consists of communications with grantees and potential grantees, staff members from the Urban Poverty Program and the larger Ford Foundation, and other individuals involved with the housing and urban economic development fields. The series' contents show the impact of national public housing legislation and policy on the programs seeking and receiving Foundation support and on the urban economic development field with which Elliott engaged. Many records discuss the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the housing policies of the George H. W. Bush and Bill Clinton Presidential Administrations.

In addition to the files documenting Elliott's responsibilities for managing the Ford Foundation's housing and economic development grants, there are several files in the series that regard the planning and strategizing of the Urban Poverty Program. Among this material is a group of records which discuss the transitioning of the Urban Poverty Program to become part of the Asset Building and Community Development Program (ASSETS) in 1996.
